

C20: The Magazine of the Twentieth Century Society

C20 is the magazine of the Twentieth Century Society, which campaigns for the best architecture and design in Britain from 1914 onwards.

Published in full-colour, it combines in-depth articles about C20 buildings and design, with regular features such as 'Me and my house', 'Desert Island choice', book reviews, obituaries, and news about the Society's work.

The current issue includes remarkable b/w images of the Boots factory in Nottingham in the 1930s; Harriet Atkinson celebrates the work of pioneering designer Misha Black, co-founder of the Design Research Unit; and Marilyn Farr explores the effects of modernism on the C19 pleasure gardens of Bournemouth.
